

COPYRIGHT DISCLAIMER

By registering on the INGRAPH platform and by signing the platform Terms and Conditions, you also confirm that you understand and accept the provisions of the present disclaimer and agree to act in accordance with the present disclaimer.

As a platform user, you confirm that in the event you decide to post an article or any other materials on the platform, you agree to provide the platform operator with all the required information and documentation that confirm your rights as an author of the article or other materials you wish to publicize. Among such confirmation are:

- Copyright notice or any other official confirmation of copyrights;
- information from public sources confirming originality and copyrights of the author;
- official registration numbers or extracts from registries confirming copyrights of the author.

You confirm and accept that the platform is entitled to request additional confirmations and documentation that it may reasonably require to make sure of your rights as an author. Should the INGRAPH platform operator remain unsure of your author's rights, he will be entitled to cancel the publication of an article. In such an event, you shall not hold the INGRAPH platform or the operator liable for any losses you may incur.

By posting articles or other materials on the platform you confirm that you are the sole author of the article. Should there be any co-authors in relation to any article or materials you wish to publicize, you accept your obligation to provide us with an official consent from your co-authors for publication of the article or materials on the INGRAPH platform. In the event that it is revealed that you are not the sole author of the publicized article, the INGRAPH platform operator is entitled to block your platform account, inform relevant authorities, and provide assistance to co-authors whose rights were violated.

Should any platform user violate your copyright, you shall not hold the INGRAPH platform liable for such a violation. Upon your request the platform operator shall provide you with the information and data that you may reasonably require for protection of your rights and interests.

As the INGRAPH platform user you take upon yourself any liability for any illegal, unfair or fraudulent use of any articles and information that is posted on the platform, including any infringement of any user's copyrights, including, but not limited to the following:

- plagiarism;
- illegal use of materials;
- translation of materials without an author's permission;
- any other illegal activities.

Should it be required under the applicable legislation for the purpose of protection of rights and interests of platform users or in accordance with a legal request of state authorities or in accordance with the INGRAPH privacy policy and INGRAPH copyright policy, the platform is entitled to disclose any information that is reasonably required to ensure the legality and protect rights and interests of involved parties.